OPPOSE THE LIQUOR ACT

BECAUSE:

The temperance workers are using dishonest methods. In Cardston they say the Liquor Act means prohibition; in Calgary and Edmonton they say it will protect the workmen; in certain farming districts they say it means absolute prohibition; in certain foreign districts (all these statements can be proven), they tell some of the foreign voters that the passing of the Liquor Act will mean five-cent beer; and they tell others that the passing of the Liquor Act means that beer can be purchased from grocery stores instead of hotels.

When Alberta went "dry" in the old days it was because there was necessity for it, insofar as it enabled the officers of the law to keep liquor from the savage, half-tamed Indians. The prohibitory legislation was passed expressly to protect the Indians. This present Liquor Law is offered expressly to force the workmen to protect themselves. The active heads who were responsible for the Act are asking the people of Alberta to vote workmen to the place of untutored, murdering savages.

The Lieutenant Governor in Council (viz. the political party in power) will appoint vendors and establish them wherever thought advisable throughout the province. This opens a splendid asylum for the political healer and organizer. A political corrupt machine that is absolutely unbeatable can easily spring from the efforts of the Temperance and Moral Reformers.

Employees in breweries are forbidden to take a glass of beer while in the breweries. Can you imagine any possible manner of enforcing such a clause?

Distilleries can continue manufacturing liquor, breweries can do likewise, but they cannot sell in the province. They are permitted to ship outside the boundaries and then re-ship back to customers in Alberta, but there can be no direct dealings.

If possible, the narrow, bigoted people at the head of this Liquor Act movement would make it unlawful for any man to argue with them.

Florida water, Pain-Killer and all the alcoholic drugs are open to the drinking public. This is provided for in Clause 23 of the Liquor Act.

Clause 38 says that if an occupant of a private dwelling house is ever convicted of an offence against the Liquor Act, his house ceases to be a private dwelling house, "so long as he remains an occupant." But he can move next door and thus remove the stigma from himself and the house he lives in.

The Liquor Act will prove a boon and a blessing to discredited physicians, and to the low drug stores that formerly played to the cocaine and morphine trade.

A vendor may sell alcohol for medicinal purposes as often as a man brings in a new permit or takes a new affidavit.

A druggist may sell to his customers. The druggist is supposed to keep only five gallons in stock, and that is all he is compelled to show the sale of. He is splendidly protected if he wishes to take advantage of the excessive profits of illegal sales.

Many country papers have been threatened with withdrawal of advertisements if they sold space to the opponents of the Liquor Act.

A vendor who sells liquor unlawfully can get his job back after three years. Elections are usually four years apart.

Temperance platform speakers are declaring throughout Alberta that alcohol is a poison, pure and simple. Yet the Liquor Act provides for it for man and beast, in hospitals, drug stores, physicians' and dentists' offices, and government vendor shops. And the Act expressly declares it should be used as a medicine only.

Rev. F. W. Patterson and the Edmonton Moral Reformers are so hard pressed to find material to bolster up their falling Liquor Act that they have resorted to personal abuse of the meanest kind. They wrote letters and printed handbills ridiculing the blind Socialist, Osborne, because he was blind. They could not meet his arguments, apparently, so they attacked his physical misfortune and made a joke of it.

A vendor may sell for medicinal purposes, a druggist may sell for medicinal purposes, a physician may sell for medicinal purposes, a dentist may sell for medicinal purposes, a veterinary surgeon may sell for medicinal purposes. The quantities range from one pint to one gallon per sale.

A vendor can sell liquor for sacramental purposes on the written request of a minister of the gospel. How will they check up the ministers? Will vendors keep a list of ministers, like the present hotel men keep a list of interdicts?

The Liquor Act makes not the slightest attempt to protect the interdict. He makes a fine subject for a discussion, but he is not worthy of protection by their "temperance" legislation. Any householder can get liquor, all he wants, too.

The parents of the Liquor Act promised to suppress liquor, said they would prepare an Act that would do it, and have misled the people from the very start of the campaign.

It is unlawful for an injured person who has been carried into a drug store to drink liquor, even if ordered by a physician. The Liquor Act expressly states that no one can drink liquor in either drug store or vendor's shop. It says so twice, and very emphatically.

A vendor may sell for scientific purposes as much as ten gallons of alcohol at one time, and a scientist can keep a thousand gallons if he has a few dead bugs to preserve.

Many country newspapers have been approached by temperance workers in their districts and told that if they did not carry temperance propaganda it would mean a boycott of the paper after July 21.

Clause 3 of the Liquor Act rules absolutely that families living in flats or apartments cannot have liquor on their premises. A householder can have a quart of whisky and two gallons of liquor every hour if he can drink it. But the tenants of flats and apartments are barred.

The temperance people are carrying on a campaign of coercion and misrepresentation. They dare not discuss the Liquor Act.

A hospital can sell to patients, and though the doctors and attendants are forbidden to give liquor to the patient's friends, it is quite correct for the patient to go so. Some pretty nice little parties can be held in this way.

It places the bottle in reach of the boy and adds the temptation of forbidden fruits. It spells adventure.

The temperance workers are not fighting on the merits of their Act. They sidestep it and try to leave the impression that it means prohibition. It does not.
